

LULWORTH

... DORSET ...

About Lulworth Estate

Home to one of the most iconic stretches of England's Jurassic Coast, the Lulworth Estate encompasses breathtaking natural landscapes, remarkable geology, built heritage, and a thriving rural community. From the dramatic limestone arch of Durdle Door to the grandeur of Lulworth Castle, Lulworth welcomes over one million visitors each year. We are now embarking on a bold new chapter: reimagining our entire learning offer to inspire curiosity, ignite imagination, and foster stewardship of our environment and heritage.

The Role

We are seeking a dynamic and visionary Learning Producer to design, curate, and deliver an ambitious new learning programme for the Estate. This is a rare opportunity to shape and lead a bold new learning vision for Lulworth Estate. Working across our natural environment, built heritage, and rich social history, you will create innovative learning experiences that encourage discovery, deepen understanding, and instil a sense of care and respect for the world around us. From schools and families to lifelong learners, you will inspire our diverse audiences to connect with Lulworth in meaningful, memorable ways.

Key Responsibilities

- Curate a new learning strategy that integrates natural sciences, history, geography, and heritage interpretation into engaging programmes.
- Design and deliver learning experiences for schools, families, community groups, and adult learners, both on-site and digitally.
- Collaborate with Estate teams and external partners to ensure the learning offer is creative, relevant, and accessible.
- Develop resources and training for teachers and group leaders to enhance learning outcomes.
- Embed sustainability and stewardship messages to inspire care for our landscapes, habitats, and built heritage.
- Champion inclusivity and accessibility in all learning opportunities, ensuring people of all backgrounds can connect with Lulworth.
- Evaluate impact and participation, using insights to refine and grow the programme.

Learning Producer

Location: Lulworth Estate,

Dorset Contract: Permanent

Core Hours: Monday – Sunday
40 hours per week

Competitive Salary + Benefits

Reporting to: Director of Visitor Experience

- Integrate wellbeing into the learning offer, designing sessions that promote mental, emotional, and physical wellbeing through nature-based learning, creative exploration, and mindful engagement with the environment. These experiences will support children, young people, and adults in building resilience, confidence, and a deeper sense of connection to place.

About You

We are looking for an energetic and imaginative professional who can bring learning to life. You will be as comfortable leading a fossil-hunting session on the beach as you are designing interpretive resources for a castle exhibition.

Essential skills and experience:

- Proven track record in developing and delivering learning programmes in a heritage, cultural, or environmental setting.
- Creativity in designing experiences that are interactive, immersive, and learner-centred.
- Strong communication skills, with the ability to engage people of all ages and backgrounds.
- Knowledge of curriculum requirements and learning methodologies.
- Experience of building partnerships with schools, community groups, and cultural organisations.
- Commitment to sustainability, inclusivity, and inspiring care for the environment.

Desirable:

- Experience in digital learning or interpretation.
- Knowledge of the Jurassic Coast and coastal environment
- Project management experience in cultural or educational contexts.

Why Join Us?

This is more than a job - it's a chance to make a lasting difference. As Learning Producer, you will play a pivotal role in shaping how future generations understand and care for our shared heritage. You'll be part of a passionate team, working in one of the most stunning natural and historic settings in the country, with the creative freedom to build something extraordinary and continue a lasting legacy of learning at Lulworth.
